

Rear Admiral Aaron Rugh

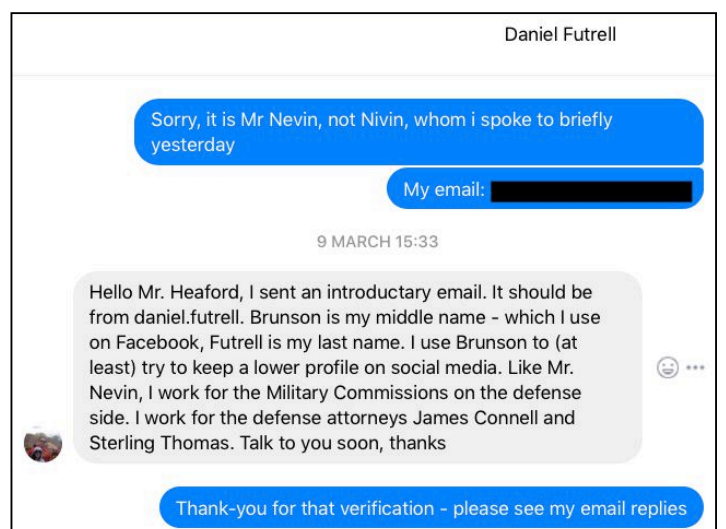

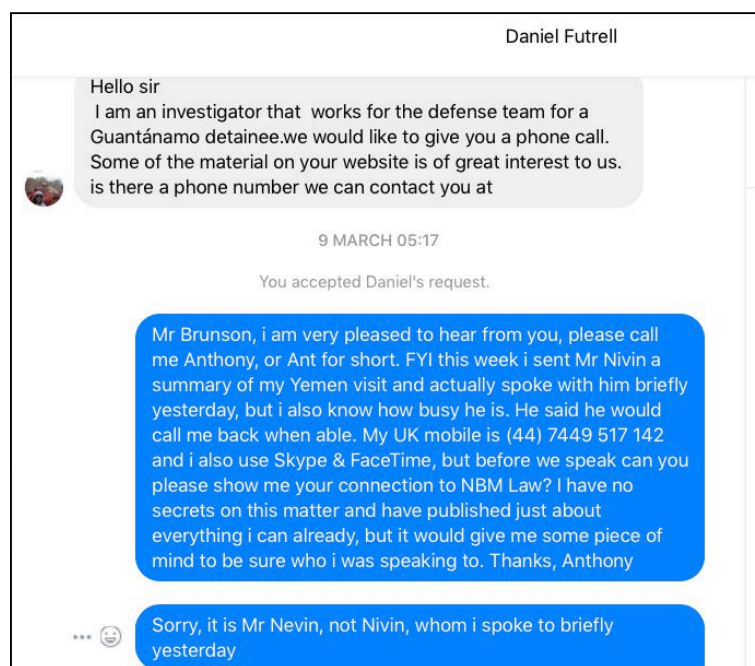

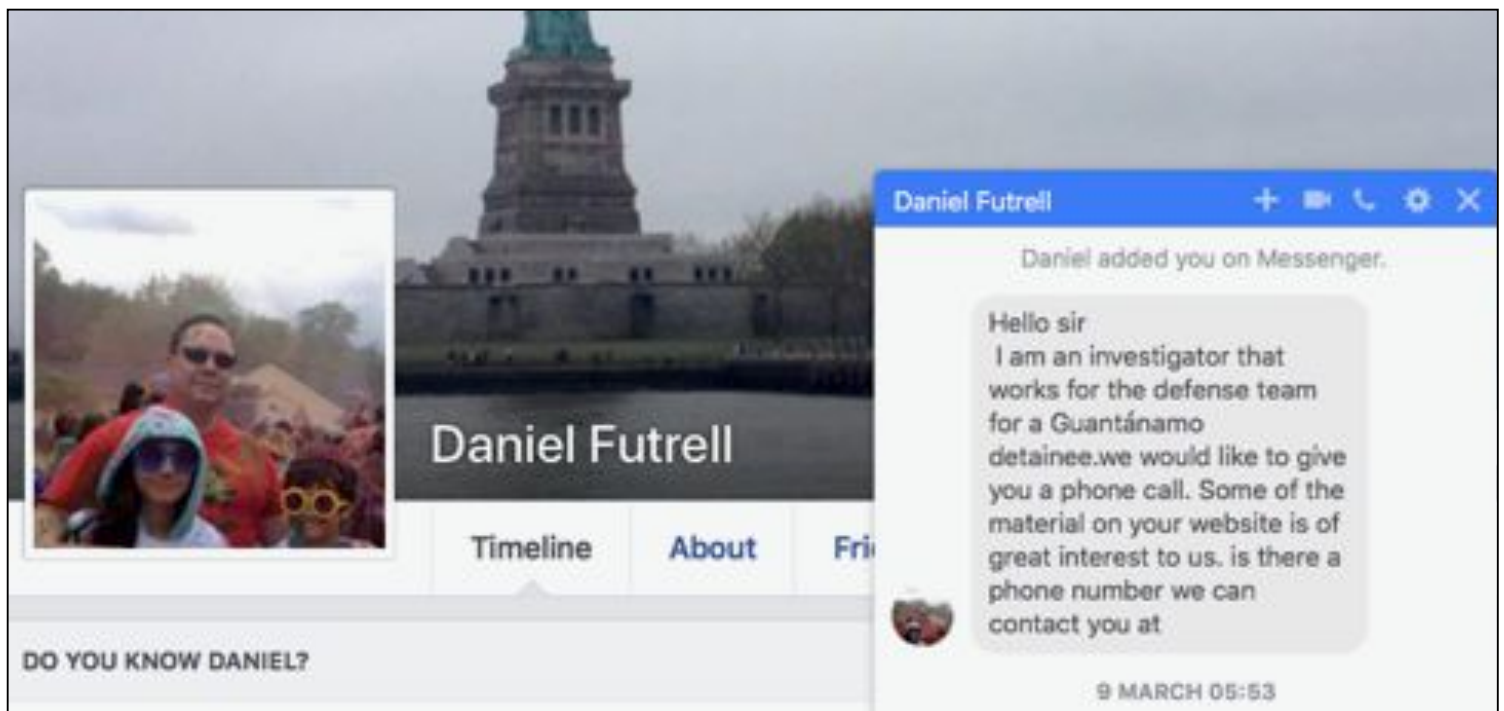

by Anthony C Heaford

"For what shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, but lose his soul?"

Military attorney Aaron Rugh was appointed and confirmed Chief Prosecutor of the Guantanamo Military Commission in May 2022.

My Correspondence from the Military Commission

Following the Guantanamo pre-trial hearings of February/March 2018, which were mostly conducted behind closed doors, I was contacted on 9 march 2018 by US military investigator Dan Futrell. Futrell was working for the legal defense team of Khalid Sheikh Mohammed's nephew Ammar al-Baluchi. Dan Futrell's first contact with me was via Facebook Messenger, initially using a fake name as detailed below:

This correspondence proves that I have been contacted by a 9/11 Military Commission's defense team.

Those defense teams are not allowed to contact any potential witnesses to the trials without the express approval of both the court and the prosecution teams. That is why I believe I was a principle topic of discussion at the closed door pre-trial Guantanamo hearings of February / March 2018. As the Chief Prosecutor for the 9/11 trials, Aaron Rugh must be aware of both me and my claims through the review of trial material. Any suggestion that he is not would be asserting that the Military Commission are deleting / withholding information from the newly appointed Chief Prosecutor.

The next email from Dan Futrell proves the Military Commission considered my claims and assertions (first made in April 2015) regarding my meetings with members of Khalid Sheikh Mohammed's terrorist cell in 1997 Yemen worthy of sending a TEAM of investigators to Manchester to interview me about.

After initially cooperating fully with the Military Commission, and due to my suspicions and mistrust of the Guantanamo court, in April 2018 I withdrew my consent to be interviewed. I have not been contacted by the Military Commission since. My mistrust of the court later proved correct when I discovered that the defense team Dan Futrell represented had already trashed my testimony in a December 2017 New York Times interview with defense attorney Alka Pradhan.

Hello Mr. Heaford,

My name is Daniel Futrell and I am a researcher/investigator working from the Defense Attorneys James Connell and Sterling Thomas. Mr. Connell and Mr. Thomas are the defense attorneys representing Ammar al Baluchi, a detainee in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, who is facing trial and a possible death sentence concerning the 9/11 attacks in New York City. He is the nephew of Khalid Shaikh Mohammed (KSM) and one of the five 9/11 defendants facing a pending trial down at the Military Commission in Guantanamo Bay. Mr. Nevin represents KSM and we are part of the legal defense team of KSM's nephew, Ammar al Baluchi.

As part of our preparation of defense, we have been examining a wide range information and the research you have done is very interesting to us. We would like the opportunity to have an interview with you and have a discussion on research you have done

Here is a video explaining our client Ammar Al-Baluchi and our legal defense of him. The attorney in the video is James Connell. He is interviewed in this report by RT Television.

We are interested in meeting you for an interview. Please let us know your availability, if this is possible. We are very interested in your insight and knowledge regarding the subject matter you have researched.

Very Respectfully,

Daniel Futrell

Hello Mr. Heaford,

Thank you for agreeing to meet and interview with us. As so happens, several members of the defense team of Ammar al Baluchi will attending a meeting in London in June. Unfortunately, not myself. Ms. Zittritsch, a researcher and team member, is attending this trip to London and she would be very happy to travel to Manchester with some other team members of mine to meet you in Manchester. Are you available between the time-period of June 8th to 12th? She is cc on this email and she will coordinate with you concerning the meeting in Manchester, if you are available.

Again, thank you so much.

Very Respectfully,
Dan Futrell

My Connection to Aaron Rugh via LinkedIn

As a keen watcher of the Guantanamo trials, as soon as Rugh was nominated for Chief Prosecutor I sent him a connection request via LinkedIn. Within a few days Rugh viewed my LinkedIn profile, and I was content with that very minor action in response to my connection request:

But then, coinciding with Rugh's promotion to Rear Admiral and his 27 May Senate confirmation as Chief Prosecutor, I was amazed when he accepted my connection request:

I assumed that Rugh connecting with me, a witness to the beginning of planning of 9/11 in 1997 Yemen, was an attempt by him to have himself removed from the trials. That suspicion was supported by:

- reports that the June pre-trial 9/11 hearings were overseen by an acting-Chief Prosecutor.
- Rugh failing to update his LinkedIn profile with his new appointment to Chief Prosecutor.

But then in July 2022 Rugh did update his LinkedIn profile and in August Rugh was attending pre-trial 9/11 hearings at Guantanamo. At the same time Rugh broke his LinkedIn connection to me too, after I'd addressed I'm as 'Bozo' (clown reference) in a private message.

And so it appears to me, that after his initial reluctance to assume the position of Chief Prosecutor, Rugh has accepted that command and has accepted the condition that my evidence and testimony continues to be withheld from the public court hearings. It appears to me that Rear Admiral Rugh has made a considered decision to become a critical part in the coverup of the truth about 9/11. That 9/11 truth is detailed in the next infographic that asserts I inspired the attack method with my very specific travel warning given to members of KSM's terror cell in 1997 Yemen.

The true origin of 9/11, as asserted by me, Anthony C Heaford:

During a six day business trip to Yemen in Sept 1997 the customer's chemistry graduate Pakistani employees asked me about visiting New York as tourists, and specifically about visiting the World Trade Centre. I warned them, saying:

"The same group that tried to blow-up the World Trade Centre in 1993 will try again, but next time they'll use a hijacked civilian airliner departing Logan airport as a missile."

The customer was a multi-billion dollar global conglomerate, the Hayel Saeed Anam Group at PO Box 5302 Taiz. After confirming my travel warning the managing director Saeed Alrobaidi arranged three meetings for me. First I was vetted by Yousef before being introduced to "the Engineer" (Khalid Sheikh Mohammed) the next morning, just before being taken to a meeting one mile from Al Qa'idah town. My employer was a British engineering company with an ex-US Special Forces, MACVSOG trained, CIA linked (via Billy Waugh) US salesman, Dave Dean.
